Expected SSC GD Cutoff Marks 2026

The SSC GD cutoff marks are released along with the result. These cutoff marks vary according to category, state, gender, and force. Several factors affect the final cutoff including the number of vacancies, difficulty level of the examination, normalization process, and the number of candidates appearing for the exam. Based on previous trends and expert analysis, the expected cutoff for General category candidates in 2026 may remain between 140 to 150 marks, while OBC and EWS categories may have slightly lower cutoffs. SC and ST category cutoffs are generally lower depending on regional vacancies.

Category	Expected Cutoff Range
General (UR)	140 – 150
OBC	135 – 145
EWS	138 – 148
SC	125 – 135
ST	120 – 130
ESM	95 – 110

Factors Affecting SSC GD Cutoff

Many important factors influence the SSC GD cutoff every year. If the examination paper is considered easy, the cutoff tends to increase because more candidates score higher marks. On the other hand, difficult question papers generally result in lower cutoff marks. The total number of vacancies also plays a major role. Increased vacancies may reduce competition and lower the cutoff in some states. Similarly, regions with fewer vacancies often witness higher competition and higher cutoff marks.
